SOUTHERN COMPANY

If the Southern Company of this Regiment is ever to be re-established, it is important that there be good leadership for The Company.

That leadership has many components - attending events, being properly and completely outfitted, having your uniform clean and well maintained, having your equipment clean and well maintained, being attentive to your duties, showing proper respect to those set over you, and being ready and willing to accept extra duty when asked. These are just part of what it means to be prepared for leadership.

In the weeks and months ahead, I hope to be able to identify potential for leadership and to give those individuals an opportunity to prove themselves.
